The scholarship selection committee consists of Institute Board members and members of the Budget and Finance committee. Applicants for financial need scholarships are reviewed on the criteria of financial need only. Funding for the scholarship program is provided by donations from individuals, corporations, and foundations. There are two rounds of review and selection although there is only one pool of funds for allocation annually. Therefore, those individuals in the second round could potentially receive little to no funding because the allocation pool is depleted. Institute Faculty and staff have zero input into the selection process. All application information is highly confidential. For further information about the scholarship application process please contact Pamela Luttrell.
